

Running from the Chase - II

Mirror my soul, I didn't know
So much I had to let go in order to grow

Tried for so long to run from this
Told me everything was up to me
I couldn't help but to dismiss
All I wanted was for you to let me be

Every decision I made would direct the path of this life
Why me? Still, I rolled these dice
When you came around, I was ice

The lines were blurred, my heart wide open
Deep down I craved this, but in the moment
My disguise had slipped off my bare skin
I was worn so thin

Watched you leave, only to come right back
Lights flickered in your absence
Restless eyes turned insomniac
Fell back into bad habits
